

At Kettlefields, we understand the important role science has in our everyday lives as well as our ever developing world.
We know that our science is great when we:

Have wow moments

Use suitable resources

Link our learning to books or other topics or the world around us

Enjoy learning and can learn from our mistakes or wrong answers

Make links with other scientists and learn from them

Explain

Create and test our own questions and ideas

Are able to join in hands on activities

Communicate with our learning team
